Another Great First Monday Meetup, May 6th

Karen Saleen greeted everyone and Carol Harris reviewed upcoming KAA classes.

Leland Gilson introduced us to creating art with natural pigments. Leland talked about his materials, tools and process. It was a very interesting presentation and everyone learned a lot. Leland says he no longer, or at least not as often, stops at rock cuts along the road to gather materials to grind into art pigments with which to paint. It was interesting to learn that his pigments are very fine, like baby talcum powder.

Leland has a show currently on display at the Salem Hospital, Building C. You will not be disappointed if you see it!

Thanks, Leland, for a great and informative presentation.

Martha Hughes explained to us the difference between “classical” and “fiddle” violin music. She said classical is much more structured and formal, even when holding the violin and the bow. When playing the fiddle, she explained, each performance can be different and more unique to the performer. Martha played several demonstrations and everyone was amazed at Martha’s incredible skill.

Thanks, Martha, for such a wonderful performance!

SHOW AND TELL followed the presentations by Leland and Martha:

Linda Flicker shared her most recent “light painting”. This piece consisted of approximately 50 individual photos, each illuminated by flashlight. Lovely piece!

Penny White showed an accordion book she created using calligraphy and watercolor. The book is wonderfully done including a very moving poem. Thank you for sharing this great work of art with us, Penny!

Mary McGee demonstrated a wonderful light box she had made. It was amazing how the items she placed in the box “came alive: through the light and shadow enhancements caused by the box and it’s light source. Mary was kind enough to donate the light box to KAA. Thank you very much, Mary.

Susan Browning shared a beautiful flower painting she did in Angie Wrahtz’ class. She explained the technique and process she used to create the background for the painting. Lovely piece of art! Thanks for sharing, Susan.

Karen Saleen shared how she uses both sides of plastic film to create wonderful colored pencil art. She said she uses a drafting film that has “tooth” on both sides. This technique has its challenges including having to remember that the image reverses when working on the back side. Thank you, Karen, for sharing this unique process.

APRIL ARTIST OF THE MONTH – CHRIS BAKER

Chris says:

“IT ALL STARTED WITH HORSES!”

Like many artists, I can't recall a time when I didn't draw, color, cut, glue, mess with clay, make pictures. I never owned a horse (sigh!), but was crazy about them and they were the subject of much of my early "art". In school, I volunteered decorating committees, designed and painted posters for class events & illustrated written assignments. I once received a "C" on an essay and was advised by the teacher to spend more time on the paper & less on the decorative cover!

My formal art education consists of a BA in Studio Art from Oregon State University, 1970. The Art Department was exciting, inspiring. I was happily immersed in art history, figure drawing, oil painting, basic design, metal-smithing & my favorite medium, printmaking. This included lithography, etching, engraving and woodcut. After a time consuming & complex process involving limestone slabs, copper & zinc plates, smelly solvents, viscous inks, it was pure magic to see a print emerge from the press.

In 1999, I acquired an MA in Art Therapy from Marylhurst University. My major focus was geriatrics and how to apply therapeutic art activities with elders, some with memory loss, to illustrate their life stories. I organized groups in several facilities, & with my guidance, participants recalled, reminisced about childhood, home, food, family, pets, celebrations, then portrayed their memories in colorful sketchbooks. Families treasured these recollections, were occasionally astonished, commenting, "Mom, you never told us about that!"

Throughout life, I've worked in various media, including fabrication & lost wax casting of gold & silver jewelry, acrylic painting, pebble, glass & bone mosaics and colored pencil. For the past 5 – 6 years, I've been having fun playing with wool fleece & fiber to create art works in felt.

So, it began with horses, & continues as a delightful, satisfying ride!
